'NO DIGNITY'

Nurse brands hospital's care of her mother 'horrific'

Elderly people are "dying needlessly" at Epsom Hospital, according to a nurse at the hospital who has condemned the lack of dignity and respect afforded her mother who died there last month.

Nurse X, who insisted on remaining anonymous, said the treatment given to her 80-year-old mother in her final days in Buckley ward was "horrific".

Nurse X's mother, who was herself an outstanding nurse and won a Nurse of the Year award, lived at a care home in Banstead, and was admitted to St Helier Hospital in February with a fractured hip.

She was transferred to Epsom two-and-a-half weeks later "at 4am, in the freezing cold, because they needed the bed".

Her mother suffered from late stage dementia, had a limited vocabulary and both her hands were crippled.

She died three days after being admitted to Epsom from pneumonia.

Her daughter said she is concerned that the elderly, particularly those with conditions such as dementia, are not being treated with respect and dignity by its staff.

Epsom Hospital said it was taking Nurse X's claims "very seriously" and its most recent Care Quality Commission (CQC) inspection found it was meeting all essential standards, including treating patients with respect and protecting them from abuse.

Nurse X's concerns come as the Government considers its response to the Francis Inquiry into the Mid-Staffordshire NHS Trust and Stafford Hospital scandal, where it was estimated as many as 1,200 people, many of them elderly, unnecessarily died between 2005 and 2008.

The Government is expected to make recommendations aimed at putting compassionate care back at the heart of the NHS, including compulsory hands-on training for nurses, a "duty of candour" on hospitals to be open about mistakes, and a ban on gagging clauses to silence whistleblowers.

'I don't want anyone else to go through this horror'

Two damning reports have also been published in the last fortnight by the CQC highlighting shortcomings with the hospital care of vulnerable elderly people such as Nurse X's mother.

Nurse X said she did not believe her mother's case was an "isolated incident".

The 45-year-old nurse, who has been in the profession for 28 years, said: "Buckley ward contains a lot of elderly people and it was filthy."

"If she had not gone into Buckley ward she would still be alive. Epsom Hospital totally neglected her. They killed her."

Nurse X said there were "basic failings" in her mother's care and nurses were "unhelpful and rude" when she raised concerns.

She said: "A dead fly was on her windowsill for three days, cups were not cleaned for 24 hours, dishes were not cleared after dinner and the hot beverage trolley never came in. Cups and trays were out of reach."

"The oxygen mask was round her neck, not on her face, and when Mum had trouble breathing on the day she died her bell was ignored."

"Patients were left stuck in the toilets and staff did not wash their hands after each patient."

"A nurse crushed an iron tablet on to Mum's tongue and just left it there."

"There was a lack of basic hygiene and dignity."

She said she was "devastated" that she was not allowed to sit with her mother following her death, saying "care should be ongoing even after death".

A report published by the CQC two weeks ago warned that dementia-sufferers end up in hospital more often, stay longer and are more likely to die there because their needs are neglected.

A second CQC report found that older people in nearly a fifth of hospitals were not being treated with dignity or being given the respect and privacy they needed.

Nurse X said: "My mum's hands were crippled so she could not push the buttons for the bell. She could not say she didn't want to be moved in the middle of the night."

"I could see she was suffering as she had tears in her eyes."

"Just because they are old does not mean they do not have a voice and deserve the same care."

"I do not want anyone else to go through this. I want to do my mum justice. I want everyone at the hospital to think of each patient as family members."

Nurse X said she complained to the patient advice and liaison service (Pals) and heard back from the trust's chief executive, Matthew Hopkins, who said he wanted to arrange a meeting with her but was later told to put a formal complaint in writing, and is in the process of doing so.

Nurse X's gives views on the Francis Inquiry

Nurse X welcomes the recommendation for compulsory training for nurses, where they would spend up to a year helping patients to eat, wash and get dressed, in order for them to secure NHS funding for their nursing degrees.

She said: "That is what I call nursing care - looking after a patient's emotional, as well as their physical, care."

"We have to go back in time and go back to basics. Nursing training needs to include the basics, as well as the procedures."

She said the "duty of candour" is a good idea, but "will have to be policed because there will always be a rotten apple in the cart".

Nurse X said she would also welcome further protection for whistleblowers.

She said: "I whistle-blew in a hospital before and they made my life hell afterwards."

"That is why most people keep their mouths shut."

She said professionals were leaving the NHS "because they are not happy" and that use of agency staff is lowering standards.

She said: "Agency staff are not here all the time and they do not really give a damn."

"They are not as accountable as nurses who are on the wards all the time."

"There is no compassion in the NHS whatsoever."

"Big reforms need to take place."

compassion and respect is an absolute priority.

"While Nurse X's mother was in hospital, her daughter raised some concerns with us, which we believe were resolved at the time."

"However, some of the issues she has raised since, regarding the clinical care provided at Epsom Hospital, will require further investigation."

"We know Nurse X is in contact with Pals and hope by continuing to work together we can help her get the answers she needs at this difficult time."

Reach for the stars: Showing sporty spirit at the Rainbow leisure centre

Taking inspiration from the Olympics

Families were put through their paces during challenges inspired by the Olympics and Paralympics on Sunday.

The Be Inspired open day encouraged people to challenge themselves and get involved at the Rainbow leisure centre in East Street, Epsom.

Sports challenges on offer included an assault course, basketball, swimming and standing jumps.

Jan Mason, chairman of Epsom Council's leisure committee, said: "What a fantastic way of trying out the facilities at the Rainbow leisure centre."

"We all want to get that little bit fitter and this is a great opportunity for all of the family to try something new."

Residents' frustration at consultation

Campaigners left feeling frustrated after a drop-in session last week about health service changes that could see Epsom Hospital losing its accident and emergency and maternity units.

The well-attended meeting at Bourne Hall, Ewell, was part of the ongoing Better Services, Better Value (BSBV) review of healthcare in south-west London, Epsom and surrounding areas.

One hundred and forty residents and patients joined discussions at different tables on a wide range of subjects.

These included urgent care, accident and emergency, planned care, maternity and children's services, out-of-hospital care, long-term conditions, end-of-life care, and transport.

But Epsom Hospital campaigner Rosemary Najim, who sat at the table discussing maternity and paediatrics, said she came away feeling as if their minds had already been made up.

Ms Najim said: "It seemed as if decisions had already been made. The lead person said because Epsom is part of a London trust there is nothing to be done about it."

Campaigner Bob Mackison said the large turnout showed the strength of feeling but there was not enough space or BSBV representatives given the numbers.

But a BSBV spokeswoman said the event was designed to listen rather than present information.

School celebrates sustainability

A school in Banstead has won a rare gold-standard national award for the number of pupils using sustainable modes of travel.

Banstead Community Junior School, in the Horse-shoe, is one of only eight schools in the country to have been awarded the gold school mark of the Sustrans Bike It Award.

Miss Mauren Trayner, the school's Bike It officer, said she hoped pupils would continue to use green forms of travel right the way through their lives.

On being presented with the award, Miss Trayner said: "We hope to encourage the children to take up sustainable travel throughout their lives, not just when they travel to school, but when they eventually go to work too."

Reigate and Banstead's Bike It officer congratulated all the children at a special assembly.

Mrs Tomlinson said: "It takes most schools three to four years to achieve this and you have worked fantastically hard since 2010."

Motorhomes driven away

Two men have been arrested after six motorhomes on sale were stolen on Sunday.

Police recovered one of the silver Ford motorhomes in Epsom after the theft from Charlwood Road, Horley.

A 28-year-old man, from Tadworth, and a 34-year-old man, from New Addington, have been arrested in Epsom on suspicion of motor theft.

The pair remained in police custody on Tuesday.

Detective Constable Stephanie Worrell said: "Although two people have been arrested, we believe others are involved."

"I would also ask anyone who has seen a Ford motor home parked up in an area and believe it is connected to this offence to call Surrey Police."

Raid arrests

Two men have been arrested after a robbery at a betting shop.

Masked robbers raided Bedford, in Epsom High Street, just after 9.15pm on Monday, March 18, and pinned a terrified member of staff to the floor before fleeing with £3,000.

The men, both from Epsom, are in their late teens and early 20s, and have been released on police bail until April 17 while the investigation continues.

Call police on 101, quoting reference EP/13/1182 if you have any information.

New-look library is literally ship shape

It was a case of ship ahoy! for the excited pupils who welcomed the opening of their revamped library on Monday.

Students at Woodmansterne Primary School, in Carshalton Road, Banstead, celebrated the grand unveiling of the refurbished facility with their families, none of whom had seen the changes beforehand.

Ahoy there: Headteacher Caroline Welch with Dave Chorlton, Martin Woodley and pupils

Deadline: EP74804

The central feature of the library is now a barge for pupils to sit in – to fit in with its new nautical theme, which was selected through a school project.

The school's parent and teacher association contributed money towards the refurbishment, which was carried out by volunteers, led by school governor Dave Chorlton.

The library was opened by former pupil Lord Tope, a Sutton councillor with an interest in the development of reading for children.

Doc's 'misheard' words spark fury

by ALICE FOSTER

alice.foster@london.newsquest.co.uk

A disputed remark by a doctor at the end of a meeting about proposals to radically alter health services has sparked outrage among some residents.

Better Services, Better Value (BSBV) held the meeting last Wednesday to let patients and residents air their opinions on a review that could recommend Epsom Hospital loses its accident and emergency and maternity units.

The remark came at the end when Dr Paul Alford, co-chairman of the BSBV working group for children's services, went up to give a goodbye speech at Bourne Hall in Spring Street, Ewell.

As he crossed the hall to pick up the microphone he made a remark to someone sitting at one of the discussion tables.

Di James told the Epsom Guardian: "We heard him say 'Thank God they are all going'. We went to challenge him about it. But he just said 'I'm sorry, it was only tongue in cheek'."

Ms James said she was shocked by the comment, adding: "We thought, how belittling can you be?"

Another woman at the meeting, who wanted to remain anonymous, said she also overheard

Dr Alford and got the impression he did not really want them there.

She said: "It just proves how they really have no idea. They are just contemptuous of everybody. They are going to push this through whatever everybody wants."

But Dr Alford denied this version of events when contacted last week.

A BSBV spokeswoman said: "Firstly he was incredibly upset about it because he is a devout Christian and would never have blasphemed. It's completely taken out of context."

She said Dr Alford actually said "that's good everybody is leaving now" because it was his job to wrap up the session and it appeared as though discussions were already finishing off.

She said: "He was happy that it was coming to a natural conclusion and that he would not be interrupting everybody."

"He thought it was a good session and was really glad everybody came. He was so positive about the session."

See page 2 for a report on the meeting.

Freedom for film legend

Sir Michael Caine has been given the Freedom of the City of London in recognition of his achievements in film.

Sir Michael, who lives in Leatherhead, was made a freeman just days before his 80th birthday on March 14.

He said: "I'm so proud to be given this – what a fantastic birthday present."

"I love London and am so proud to be a Londoner."

The actor, who is patron of the Leatherhead Drama Festival, was given the accolade at a ceremony in the Museum of London to mark the opening of an exhibition on his life.

Traditionally freemen had the right to carry a drawn sword in the square mile, be hung with a silken rope and drive livestock across London Bridge without paying a toll.

Nowadays the privileges are symbolic, but it remains one of the oldest surviving traditional ceremonies in the capital.

For information on the exhibition visit museumoflondon.org.uk.

ALICE FOSTER talks to the GP heading-up the new Clinical Commissioning Group

‘Patients are involved in every decision we make’

On Monday Surrey Downs Clinical Commissioning Group becomes responsible for spending more than £300m on purchasing healthcare for residents in Epsom and Ewell, Banstead, Mole Valley and east Elmbridge.

It will cover 33 GP practices, serve a population of nearly 300,000, and spend the equivalent of about £1,000 a person over the coming year buying care for the sick from hospitals, community services, social services, ambulance services, and mental healthcare organisations.

Dr Claire Fuller, who grew up in Epsom, trained at Epsom Hospital and is a GP at Banstead's Longcroft Clinic, has been chosen as clinical chairwoman of the Clinical Commissioning Group (CCG) and will play a key role in how it operates.

Asked why the new system was better than the Surrey Primary Care Trust (PCT) it is replacing, she said that the PCT had a red chair in its boardroom to represent the patient to ensure they were considered in every decision.

She said: "We have four patients on the governing board. We don't have a red chair, we have Cliff, Denise, Peter and Gavin.

"Patients and clinicians are involved in every decision we make."

And she pledged that patients, families and carers would be at the heart of every decision they make.

She said: "That's the most important thing for us."

When asked if all GPs shared her faith in the new system she replied: "I think it's wait and see. I think they are looking for proof in the pudding."

Earlier this month the influential medical journal BMJ found that a third of GPs on GP commissioning groups faced potential conflicts of interest as they either run or have shares in health-related businesses.

Dr Fuller said they have worked hard to prevent any potential conflict of interest, with the governing body members and staff at the group's 33 GP practices publishing any interests they have in healthcare services and companies.

She said: "We have got two lay members to support us on governance particularly with a view to making sure not only there is no conflict but no perceived conflict as well."

Dr Fuller said GPs would be barred from deciding who gets a contract if they had any potential conflict of interest.

She said: "You get the local knowledge from them but then they are excluded from decision making. You have clinicians involved in the discussions but then remove the conflicted GPs from the decision."

The CCG is divided into four areas Mid Surrey, Medlinc, East Elmbridge and Dorking, which each have a subcommittee and GP representatives on the governing body.

Dr Fuller said there were 10 GP representatives on the governing body, a number which should help ensure good decision making even if some GPs cannot take part due to a conflict of interest.

Dr Fuller herself is employed by NHS social enterprise Central Surrey Health that provides medical management at New Epsom and Ewell Community Hospital. The CCG helped award the organisation a new £117m, five-year contract for community healthcare in October, before she was appointed its clinical chairwoman.

Four GPs on the governing body as well as 56 other clinicians at GP practices are shareholders in Epsom Downs integrated care services (Edics), a consortium that provides outpatient services and community-based clinics.

As well as GPs and patients the governing board includes a secondary care doctor, registered nurse, chief operating officer and chief financial officer and its chief officer, Miles Freeman who is likely to be paid more than £105,000.

GPs on the governing body will be paid at the normal GP rate and it remains to be seen who will really call the shots inside the CCG.

Although the background of the GPs on the board is publicised on its website there is no mention of that of the chief officer. Following inquiries from this newspaper it emerged that he has a long history as an NHS bureaucrat specialising in commissioning. He was joint director of acute commissioning and performance at NHS Kensington and Chelsea and was also director of commissioning at NHS Hammersmith and Fulham.

The CCG's indicative budget for the coming year is broken down as £180m on acute hospital care, £61m on community and continuing healthcare, £49m on prescribing and other costs and £24m on mental health and learning disability services.

But it is already under huge financial pressure and will have to make its share of NHS efficiency savings.

Nevertheless Dr Fuller insisted that despite this, they would never compromise on patient care in order to make savings.

She said: "It's about looking at making sure there is the best care but doing it in an effective way."

It has already started a project called Virtual Wards, pioneered in Croydon, which involves bring many health experts you would normally seen in hospital out to treat people in their own homes.

Care: Dr Claire Fuller is the chairwoman of Surrey CCG

She said: "We are doing a lot of work to move care from acute hospitals to the community because the outcomes are better and patients do better by not going into big hospitals."

Asked her response to MP Chris Grayling's call for doctors to do all in their power to keep services on the Epsom Hospital site, Dr Fuller said they were making sure that the right services were at the Epsom site for the population.

She said: "We need healthcare on the Epsom site but we need to be clear what the right healthcare is for our population."

"We know changes will have to happen at Epsom. We only want changes that will give high quality care for our patients."

Dr Fuller said the Better Services, Better Value review, which is looking at services at hospitals in southwest London and Epsom, was set up to prevent 500 unnecessary deaths a year.

She said the deaths were "not acceptable" and must be prevented, adding: "If the only way we can make that happen is by a centralising of more acute clinical services then that is the right thing to do."

Dr Fuller said that after a slow start they were now fully engaged with the BSBV process.

She said: "They would all say Surrey is definitely heard. If you ask them now they would definitely say we are in the room."

A gothic mansion that once housed a BBC research centre is being turned into luxury apartments.

The developers behind the transformation received a highly commended in the developer of the year award at Kingswood Warren Park on Monday.

Surrey-based Octagon was praised for its work to convert the mansion into eight apartments and build 14 family homes in the 19-acre grounds by this summer.

The Building Excellence Awards are run by an organisation representing councils' building control departments.

The great country estate was built in 1837 and went through incarnations including a girls' finishing school, a hotel and wartime offices for evacuated staff before being bought by the BBC in 1948.

Apartments are on the market from £1.25m and family homes are available from £2.25m.

Stamp dealer left an indelible mark

by ALICE FOSTER

alice.foster@london.newsquest.co.uk

A popular stamp dealer, who ran a shop in Epsom for 33 years, died last week after a long battle with leukemia.

John Marshall, 72, an avid stamp collector like his father, moved to Epsom in 1969 and achieved his dream of opening a stamp shop in 1972. Mr Marshall started off with only a small stock and built up the Epsom Stamp Company, in Waterloo Road, from scratch.

Over the years, as his reputation for honesty and integrity grew, stamp collectors travelled from far and wide to benefit from his expertise.

His grand-daughter, Jemma Wood, said that once an elderly couple came into the shop with a brown box to find out if its contents had any value.

Mr Marshall was astonished to discover three solid gold military medals inside and sent the couple to a specialist auction, where the items sold for several thousand pounds.

In time, his business

Honour: John Marshall receives an award for his window display expanded to include medals, coins, postcards and other small collectables.

Mr Marshall had an interest in World War II and displayed gas masks and wartime memorabilia in the shop windows.

The store won a shop window competition during the Queen's silver jubilee in 1977.

During his many years in business, Mr Marshall made many friends and could hardly walk around Epsom without stopping to talk to someone.

Mr Marshall retired and sold the business in 2005, but his love of collectables never faded.

In his later years, he explored his love of dance, particular the jive and the Lindy hop, while making friends at the tea dances at Bourne Hall in Ewell.

His son Matthew Marshall said: "I remember pretty much growing up with my dad in the shop, and my life is now surrounded by wonderful memories."

"A great, charismatic person, a superb and fair businessman and, above all else, a great dad."

"He will be truly missed by the family and, given his local celebrity status, most of Epsom."

Mr Marshall, who had suffered from leukemia for 22 years, died on Tuesday, March 19. His funeral will be held at 2pm on Wednesday, April 10, at Randalls Park Crematorium in Leatherhead.

Anyone who knew him is invited and Mr Marshall requested they wear bright colours to the ceremony if possible.

Residents in dismay

Residents battling Epsom Council's plans to rent out part of a listed building to a charity are "very disappointed" that a decision has only been deferred for three months.

Members of the Ewell Court House Residents' Association opposed the council's proposal to rent out the top room of Ewell Court House, in Lakehurst Road, Ewell, for administrative use five days a week.

The proposal was considered by the council's leisure committee on Monday, when councillors said a final decision would be taken in June - to the dismay of residents who wanted a year-long deferral to "market the house".

Don Scott, chairman of the Ewell Court House Organisation, said: "We had

1,700 responses to the public consultation we launched in just seven days - three in favour of the council's proposal and the rest in support of the residents. But this doesn't appear to have had any effect whatsoever."

A council spokesman said it "acknowledges the volume of work" undertaken by volunteers in helping to establish Ewell Court House as a "much-loved community facility", but said the deferral would allow the council time to "examine in depth" the suggestions presented by some of the volunteers in the run-up to the meeting.

He said: "It is important to note the council has a responsibility to ensure the facility is not an ongoing drain on the council taxpayer."

He was treated by paramedics at the scene, but died a short time later.

A second man died after his motorbike crashed into a London Ambulance Service ambulance that was parked partly on the central reservation and partly on the A3 while dealing with the previous incident.

The motorcyclist sustained fatal injuries and was pronounced dead at the scene. He has been formally identified as Dr Rajesh Parkesh, 43, from Ascot.

Last week, Surrey Police issued a fresh appeal.

Motorists who either regularly use the trunk road or who were in the area that day to consider whether they witnessed any part of either of the two incidents.

Detective Sergeant Gary Wright said: "We have already spoken to a number of witnesses to these incidents, both at the scene and following our initial appeal for information."

"This was a tragic series of events, which occurred in a very public setting, and I would also urge anyone who has been affected by witnessing either of these incidents to seek appropriate support."

Anyone with information is asked to call Surrey Police's collision investigation unit on 01483 639922.

Inquests into both deaths were opened and adjourned at Woking Coroner's Court on March 19.

Hostage negotiator wins police honour

A policewoman who negotiated with a man holding his family hostage has been commended for her courage.

North Reigate and Banstead neighbourhood Sergeant Karen Coyne, and nine other officers were honoured at a police awards ceremony last Wednesday for dealing with an armed siege in Great Bookham last year.

Investigating officer Jo Murray, from Epsom CID, was also commended for her outstanding professionalism and exceptional victim care particularly during a case involving sex offences against children.

Sergeant Coyne negotiated with the man for five hours while police came up with a plan to rescue his ex-girlfriend, a teenage girl and baby trapped in the flat in Proctor Gardens in August.

The man set the curtains alight, put a gas canister in the microwave and was seen to knock the woman unconscious and put a knife to her throat.

Police who forced entry and Tasered the man were also presented awards by Surrey Police Chief Constable Lynne Owens.

Investigating Officer Murray was recognised for showing exemplary dedication and support for child victims through a trial, which helped them to be able to give evidence.

Cakes on Red Nose Day menu

Pupils at a primary school in Epsom held a bake-off competition for Comic Relief and its parent teacher association.

Infants and juniors at Epsom Primary School, in Pound Lane, raised £550 by baking cakes and selling them at an after-school cake sale.

The children and parents later voted on the winning infant bake-off cake, which was created by Heish Shaan Gangabaksh.

The school also sold 240 red noses.

Work begins to fill in rash of potholes on high street

Road engineers have begun to fill some of the 22 potholes logged along Epsom High Street earlier this month.

This newspaper carried out an inspection of the road surface in the town centre and found numerous potholes, including one that was 24 ft long.

In a recent AA survey, almost a third of drivers said their vehicles had been damaged by an epidemic of potholes nationwide.

A section of the road was resurfaced last week and this week Surrey County Council (SCC) is discussing plans to step up pothole inspections by 200 per cent.

Surrey's busiest roads are currently inspected four times a year but this could increase to once a month.

This new proposal follows the launch of Operation Horizon, a £100m investment into replacing the county's worst roads over the next year's five years.

John Furey, SCC's cabinet member for transport and environment, said: "We make more temporary pothole repairs than we would like at the moment. This clearly isn't the most efficient way to work.

"It also means if workers discover other problems with a road when they are on site, they often don't have time to fix them on the spot. These new proposals would help us address this."

SCC said that its two-hour deadline for responding to potholes and other defects that pose a serious safety risk would remain in place.

Tony Corbett, who has been driving a taxi in Epsom for five years, thinks potholes in the town have been getting progressively worse.

He said: "There are lots of them, but I know where they are. They usually take about a year to be fixed."

Diane Smith, 55, a homemaker for the elderly in Epsom and Ewell, uses her car six days a week.

She said: "The potholes are pretty bad along the main roads. I have just had four new tyres put on my car."

John Scott, who has lived in Epsom for 46 years, attributes poor road conditions to bad weather and the rise in popularity of 4x4 vehicles, pointing out that many weigh double a normal car.

AA president Edmund King said that ring-fenced finance must be found to plug the increasing gap in highway budgets, otherwise drivers and local authorities will end up paying more to repair damage that could have been prevented.

Flower power to the people as gardeners defy weather

Months of snow and freezing temperatures failed to deter gardeners who staged a spring show at the weekend.

Spring bulbs and flowers, as well as photographs and crafts, went on display at Epsom Garden Society's spring show at St Martin's Junior School in Epsom last Saturday.

Hundreds turned up to view the 200 exhibits.

Show secretary Jill Farnham said: "Considering the weather, with heavy snow and the rest, we had a very good turnout. We were extremely pleased."

"There's very little in the gardens at the moment because the weather is so atrocious but we had an extremely good display of spring flowers and bulbs."

The society has a growing number of junior exhibitors and, this year, children under 14 contributed 34 exhibits.

Chris Beere won the Helen Reed Cup for daffodils and the President's Cup for flowers, while Margaret Angus took away the rosette for the best flower and bulb exhibit.

Lining up: Last year's race start

New image for annual fundraising challenge

by HARDEEP MATHARU

hmatharu@london.newsquest.co.uk

A popular annual fundraising event has ditched its hen party image for a new tougher approach, with the slogan "Cancer, we're coming to get you".

The Epsom Race for Life (RFL), a 5k run that can be jogged, walked or taken at the runner's own pace, will be held on Sunday, June 30, on Epsom Downs Racecourse.

Last year's event raised £336,994 for Cancer Research UK after 4,612 women and girls put on their running shoes to take part.

The money raised funds research into more than 200 different types of cancer affecting women and men.

This year, organisers are hoping 5,000 people will sign up for Epsom RFL, raising at least £300,000.

For the first time, groups of people can sign up together, as well as individuals, while men and children are being encouraged to come along on the day and organisers will get them involved.

There will also be stalls, entertainment and a fete-like atmosphere for runners, supporters and children to enjoy.

Hundreds of women have already signed up for the Epsom event.

For more details visit raceforlife.cancerresearchuk.org or call 0845 6006050.

The cost to enter is £14.99 and £10 for children aged six to 15. It is free for children under five.

Renegeration? The shops and homes in Holymoor Lane have remained empty for several years

It's 'pathetic' progress

by HARDEEP MATHARU

hmatharu@london.newsquest.co.uk

A councillor for the most deprived area in Epsom has slammed the council for its slow progress in redeveloping a run-down eyesore – which she believes will continue to foster negative perceptions of the estate.

Epsom Council plans to redevelop a dilapidated row of shops and flats in Holymoor Lane, on the Longmead estate in Epsom, into social and affordable housing, keeping the existing convenience store on-site, and adding a doctor's surgery.

The site, which was earmarked for redevelopment in 2010, is vacant, apart from the convenience store, with the flats above the shops boarded-up.

Court ward Councillor Sheila Carlson believes progress with the project has been "pathetic" and the council should be acting with more urgency to drive it forward.

She said there were plans to go to public consultation on the redevelopment by the end of last year, with a completion date set for the end of 2014, but the council has yet to put out a tender for a developer to come forward.

Coun Carlson said: "Until that area is developed it will always look a sight and the perception of antisocial behaviour will always be associated with it."

"It has dragged on and on. It's been two years since we were first talking about it and it's just stagnated."

"If it was another area that the residents' association cared about, would there be such a delay?"

A council spokeswoman said the tender process will start in April and the successful bidder should be in place by late summer or early autumn, but this is "not due to inactivity".

She said: "It is important to take time at the outset to get the project right, to deliver a successful development and minimise the risk of problems later."

"This is a complicated project, requiring the input of a range of external partners."

"The proposal to incorporate a GP surgery requires a detailed specification of what they would need in a new building."

She said the council believes a "better scheme could be delivered" if a small piece of land, next to the row of shops, which is owned by Rosebery Housing Association, could be acquired by the council, for "design flexibility, improved site line for vehicles, additional soft landscaping and increased parking provision".

She said it was "difficult to confirm" the cost of the redevelopment as this stage.

Carers on low wages save the UK millions every year

I have recently had occasion to contact MP Chris Grayling over the coalition decision to do nothing about the Dickensian amount of £58 [a week] that it considers an acceptable amount that carers such as myself are paid. In many cases the only income we do get is approx imately 33p an hour. No minimum wage.

He brushes it off in his email as "having a deficit and not having any money for major reforms". In other words "we are not going to do anything".

Carers are saving this country millions upon millions of pounds every year and no

Government will do anything for that reason.

After telling him that after approximately 30 years of support for the Conservatives I was taking my political allegiances elsewhere, due to the continuing scandalous inactivity in addressing this outrage, his response was absolutely zero.

My years of supporting his party has left me earning less than my first wage at 17, and as disability is no respecter of age, sex, or financial standing, dramatically worse off than many, with no help from the people we have elected.

I was taught that working hard at school would increase my chances of a bright successful future. This is not the case, and while we, as carers, love our family members and friends we care for, we also need a liveable wage.

I do not sponge off the system, I do not live off others by choice. I work very hard every day, and the view of the pompous and misinformed is misguided in the extreme.

While there is money to fill the coffers of governments and the pockets of ministers of all parties, it seems we, as carers, will go on suffering this discrimination.

My 30 years of support for this administration has gained me nothing and sadly, though the alternatives are barely any better, it is time to move on.

When Mr Grayling and his party are no longer in power, or he is re-shuffled to some other department, and I hope that is not very far in the future we, as the carers of this country, will still shine as an example of how to treat the people who allow Mr Grayling and his fellow MPs to enjoy the benefits they do for the minimum of effort.

Lady's kindness meant walk could go ahead

I am writing to express my gratitude to the lady in charge at the Ibis bookshop in Banstead High Street.

On Wednesday, March 20, I arrived by train at Banstead, intending to walk a section of the London loop, Banstead Downs to Kingston Bridge, and found that I had left my map and guide at home in Twickenham.

Cursing, I walked up the hill to the town, hoping to purchase another one.

The Ibis bookshop did not have one, but the lady kindly offered to go online and download and print both items.

Having done this, she refused any payment for her kindness (and paper), so I made small amends into the charity tin on the counter.

What an example this is of the attention one used to get high streets everywhere, and which is slowly dying out.

I duly completed the walk, having unintentionally extended it by a couple of miles up and down the hill.

Once again, my grateful thanks to the lady, whose name I do not know.

Station is banal, ugly and poorly designed

Regarding the quotations displayed at Epsom station – not only do they follow the modern trend of an absence of punctuation and appropriate capitalisation, but they are so small as to be pointless.

The station development is banal and ugly and has not provided anything, but a cosmetic improvement.

There are still the same numbers of ticket gates and ticket issuing windows.

There are insufficient poster frames provided in the ticket hall, such that some posters have had to be taped on to the tiles, and the tiled staircase walls have merely been painted over, leaving the existing major cracks, along with screws, pipes and other redundant protruberances in place, looking a complete mess.

The train indicator screens in the ticket hall are both poorly-positioned (such that reading them requires passengers to stand right in front of the gates), and unreliable.

Very frequently at least one displays nonsense, and the information system in the platform waiting rooms continues to be "under test".

The fundamentals have been botched and the fripperies have taken far too much effort here.

The comprehensive destruction of the character of Epsom town centre, which is typified by the station development, prompted us to move out of the town last year.

I still have to use the station every week, and am appalled by the poor design and functionality that has emerged.

Better than eyesore

To everyone complaining about Epsom station, maybe it would be better if it had just been left as a crumbling grey eyesore?

First class tuition in maths and English

Enjoy learning without feeling pressured

With more competition for better exam results and better school places, many parents start to look for help which will support their child to excel in their maths and English studies at school.

There are many alternatives available, including after-school classes and tutors.

Here are a few tips which will help you get the right help for your child.

Firstly, anything you do must be personalised, taking into account the learning needs and style of the individual child.

Any study or revision programme must be put together with your child in mind.

“Maths and English are both skill-based subjects and skills can only be mastered through practice.”

Narcisse Sharifian, First Class Learning's Sutton manager

Secondly, the study programme must be systematic.

Maths and English are both skill-based subjects, and skills can only be mastered through practice.

This practice must be part of a structured programme so that your child can recognise his or her own achievement.

Thirdly, the work must be relevant.

Any course of study must be designed to meet the learning outcomes of the National Curriculum.

This could involve specific exam revision, ongoing support or both.

In any case, it must start addressing the work studied at school and allow the child to demonstrate competence in those areas tested at school.

First Class Learning's structured yet flexible programmes will help your child to achieve at school and grow in confidence

First Class Learning (FCL) meets all three of these essential requirements.

The structured yet flexible programmes, designed for children in the UK, will help your child to achieve at school and grow in confidence.

Narcisse Sharifian, First Class Learning's Sutton manager, said: "As a first step, we shall assess your child. The assessment will help to determine his/her specific needs and ensure a suitable starting point in the programme. This is critical."

"Then, using a combination of carefully structured worksheets and textbooks, we will devise a programme specifically for your child to take him or her from the basics of maths and/or English through to the more demanding aspects of school work."

After opening its doors a year ago, FCL Sutton has continuously been expanding to meet the growing demand during weekdays and on Saturdays. Every week, at the end of each session, students receive homework specifically designed for them to do at home for the following week.

Mrs Sharifian added: "Not forgetting the fun element, we also have devised different schemes to encourage all the students to enjoy learning without feeling pressured."

"I am very proud of the wonderful results we have achieved so far, which goes to show why the majority of our students are referred to us by parents of children who are already attending First Class Learning."

First Class Learning was developed by a British team of educationalists specifically to support the National Curriculum in England, Wales and Northern Ireland (and the Scottish equivalent).

MUSEUM CLUB

Feast fit for king

Children are granted an audience with Tudor King Henry VIII at Bourne Hall Kids Museum Club over the Easter holidays and get the low-down on wartime rationing.

On Wednesday, April 3, Henry VIII will talk about the Tudor dynasty and his life in the morning then focus on his hobbies and how much he enjoys eating in the afternoon.

The next day in the Revolving Rationing sessions, which are the same in the morning and afternoon, children will meet people from the Ministry of Food and Women's Royal Voluntary Service during World War II.

Talks include how to make the most of meagre rations and make do by mending clothes.

Sessions cost £4, with the Horrible Henry sessions including a mini-tournament.

● Bourne Hall Museum Club; Bourne Hall, Spring Street, Ewell; Horrible Henry on April 3 and Revolting Rationing on April 4, 11am to 12.30pm and 2pm to 3.30pm; call 020 8394 1734, email dbrooks@epsom-ewell.gov.uk or visit epsomandewellhistoryexplorer.org.uk/bournehallmuseumclub.

POP FACTOR

● Epsom Playhouse, Ashley Avenue, Epsom; April 6, 6pm; from £10; call 01372 742555; visit epsomplayhouse.co.uk.

TOP of the POPS

Feel-good family concert Pop Factor features TV talent show stars at the Epsom Playhouse, writes Alice Foster.

Brother and sister duo Sean and Sarah Smith, known as Same Difference, will join the Pop Factor cast after coming third in X Factor in 2007.

Pop Factor is a children's concert show featuring hits for this generation in tributes and mash-ups.

Its singers and dancers invite the audience to party in the aisles and stage competitions to bring audience members up on stage.

Pop Factor is the brainchild of West End performer

Jonathan Mawson, who trained at Epsom's performing arts college Laine Theatre Arts, and choreographer Hayley-Jane Simmons.

The pair collaborated on the 2010 UK tour of High School Rocks and continued their partnership with this new show.

On X Factor Simon Cowell mentored Same Difference, who went on to release the single We R One and the album Pop.

Since the show they have kept singing and run the Same Difference Pop Academy, which offers courses for young people who want to "reach for the stars".

WE WILL ROCK - LIVE!

Get ready to ROCK

Budding rock stars and actors are invited to join music, drama and dance workshops over the Easter holiday.

Epsom's Realistic Rock and Dandelion Theatre Arts have joined forces to put on a five-day intensive course.

Students can take part in dance, drama and music workshops leading up to a West End-style performance at the end.

We Will Rock - Live! is putting on a showcase for family and friends at Langley Vale Village Hall in Rosebery Road.

The last two days of the course is spent rehearsing at the village hall after three days of workshops at Realistic Rock Academy, East Street.

The course gives performers the opportunity to take part in all aspects of a musical production from learning to play the music to appearing on stage.

It runs from 9am to 3pm each day and is aimed at seven to 12-year-olds. It costs £150.

● We Will Rock - Live! Realistic Rock Academy, East Street, and Langley Vale Village Hall, Rosebery Road, Epsom; April 8 to 12, 9am to 3pm; call 01306 886243 or 01372 740300, email jennai@dandeliontheatrearts.co.uk or info@realisticmusicacademy.co.uk, or visit realisticmusicacademy.co.uk or dandeliontheatrearts.co.uk.

Cautious welcome for Budget's homes plans

Government could still do more say agents

Estate agents have given a cautious welcome to the plans announced in last week's Budget to help people buy a home of their own.

Chancellor George Osborne announced various measures to help purchasers.

Help to Buy – a development of the current FirstBuy and NewBuy schemes – will take two forms.

Buyers can take an interest-free loan from the government, available from April 1, which will help people who want to buy a new-build property.

TAMASIN COATES

property@london.newsquest.co.uk

It is available to existing homeowners as well as first-time buyers.

Borrowers will need to raise a deposit of five per cent of the value of the property but can borrow a further 20 per cent on an interest-free basis. The biggest loan available will be £120,000.

The other part of the Help to Buy scheme sees the government acting as guarantor for some of a borrower's debt.

It will provide the lender with a guarantee of up to 15 per cent of your loan – allowing it to offer a mortgage even though the deposit you have put down might be as little as five per cent (the minimum to take part in the scheme).

This will be available from January next year and will be available to buyers of old as well as new-build properties.

The loan and guarantee will be available for homes worth up to £600,000 and there will be no cap on how much you can earn to qualify.

Mark Hayward, president of the National Association of Estate Agents (NAEA) said the proposals are a help but more needs to be done.

"The NAEA has consistently called on the Government and the banks to look at more comprehensive ways to improve access to funding for prospective homeowners, especially for the important first-time buyer market.

"In the absence of a Stamp Duty Holiday for first-time buyers, it is imperative that politicians, the house building industry and the major lenders continue to look at more ways to offer support to this fragile part of the sector."

The House Builders Federation (HBF) welcomed the proposals.

Stewart Baseley, executive chairman of HBF said: "A lack of affordable mortgage availability remains the biggest constraint on housing supply – something government now understands and is looking to address.

"Extending NewBuy to the secondhand market should create churn in the market place and drive up sales across the board – including for new homes.

"We do though need to ensure a level playing field across the whole market.

"Extending FirstBuy is very welcome and will provide a real option for people currently unable to buy – so providing a vital market for the new homes industry.

"Government must be praised for its attempts to stimulate activity, but must also be wary to get the details right."

Waiting years to buy a home

Around 4.5 million – equivalent to 61 per cent – of all private and social renters in England never expect to buy a home, according to new analysis.

The analysis from housing investment and shared equity mortgage provider, Castle Trust of the latest ONS English Housing Survey shows that three million social renters and 1.5 million private renters don't believe they will ever buy a home. Indeed of those that do envisage buying a home, half – around 1.5 million – think it will be five years or more before they will look to buy.

Castle Trust's analysis also showed that owner occupation in England has decreased by 200,000 from 14.6 million in 2008 to 14.4 million in 2012.

BOX BEAUTIFUL

With a beautifully landscaped garden on various levels and unspoilt countryside on the doorstep, Shambles is ideal for those who love the outdoors

The couple have set up a home study in one of the three double bedrooms upstairs, leaving them the big master bedroom with en-suite bathroom and a further double room for guests. “All the bedrooms are big, light and airy, and they all benefit from having green views,” he said. “It’s a very flexible house and would be ideal for a family or a retired or young couple. It offers a fantastic work-life balance.” Box Hill also benefits from a very strong community spirit.

LEAD NURSE DERMATOLOGY AND PLASTICS Full Time Salary Negotiable
Involves cross site work at Epsom and Cobham Day Surgery and attendance once per week at St Georges or Epsom NHS Trust as the Core Nurse Member of the Skin MDT

An opportunity has arisen for an experienced dermatology/plastics nurse to extend and adapt their current skills in skin cancer nursing within a highly successful and well established independent day surgery unit, providing care across both our hospital sites.

The post holder will have knowledge and good clinical experience of dermatology, plastics and cancer care. The post will enable the successful candidate to develop autonomy within the role through nurse-led clinics and co-ordination of the patient pathway. They will be a core member of the Skin MDT and act as key worker for patients within the organisation.

We are looking for an enthusiastic, motivated individual who can manage change, lead a service and apply up to date evidence based practice. Ideally the post holder should have gained a relevant degree or be willing to undergo further professional development.

If you think that you have the relevant skills and experience and want to be involved in first class healthcare as a pivotal key member please e-mail jacki.street@epsommedical.co.uk or telephone 01932 588400. For informal discussion or visit please contact Helen Kelly (Outpatient Manager) on the same number Informal visits very welcome.

Closing date: 19th April 2013

Senior Receptionist Full Time
Salary Circa 21K depending on experience
Involves cross site work at Epsom and Cobham Day Surgeries

We are looking for a motivated Professional Senior Receptionist with excellent administrative and communication skills who can work under pressure and can organise two busy reception areas.

The post holder will be responsible for managing the reception teams at both sites ensuring a high quality of customer service. Previous NHS/medical experience or experience in a similar role would be an advantage but not essential. This is a full time post.

If you think that you have the relevant skills and experience and want to be involved in first class healthcare as a pivotal key member please e-mail jacki.street@epsommedical.co.uk or telephone 01932 588400. For informal discussion or visit please contact Keeley Dossi (Customer Services Manager) on the same number. Informal visits very welcome

The post is within both Cobham and Epsom Day Surgeries located in Surrey. It is part of the Epsommedical Group, an independent provider of hospital services for the NHS and private patients, providing day surgery, diagnostics and outpatient services for the locality.

Everyone buys it, but few read it

What best-selling booklet applies to the whole of England, Scotland and Wales and, according to the Government, is 'essential reading' for everyone?

The answer is simply The Highway Code. Yet, truthfully, when did you last even glance at it?

The fact is many of its rules reflect laws that everyone needs to be aware of.

But according to a new motoring survey by breakdown service Autonation Rescue, most motorists haven't read the Code for many years.

The survey, undertaken by YouGov, asked motorists when they had last read anything at all from the Highway Code?

In total, half said they hadn't read anything from

Most motorists have not read the Code for many years the Highway Code for more than five years. And in detail, the figures speak for themselves:

- nine per cent simply couldn't recall when they last read the Code;
- eight per cent said it was more than 30 years ago; • 11 per cent said it was between 20 and 30 years ago; • 17 per cent between 10 and 20 years ago; • 14 per cent between five and 10 years ago; • 23 per cent said they last read the Code between one and five years ago;
- 10 per cent said it was between six months and a year, and finally;
- eight per cent within the last six months.

Autonation Rescue's marketing manager Ronan Hart, said: "Many motorists believe their driving experience more than makes up for not knowing what's in the Highway Code.

"But if you disobey many of its rules, either deliberately or by not being aware of them, you'll be committing a criminal offence and can be fined, given penalty points or disqualified from driving. In the most serious cases you could even be sent to prison.

He added: "It's really a question of common sense, but the booklet should not be allowed to just gather dust on your shelves.

"Sitting down once in a while and refreshing your memory about what's in the Highway Code is good practice and I guarantee you will find some surprises in there of rules of the road that you just weren't aware of."

Here's what The Code says about breakdowns:

If your vehicle breaks down, think first other road users and

- get your vehicle off the road if possible;
- warn other traffic by using your hazard warning lights;
- wear light-coloured or fluorescent clothing in daylight and reflective clothing at night or in poor visibility;

- put a warning triangle on the road at least 45 metres (147ft) behind your broken-down vehicle on the same side of the road, or use other permitted warning devices if you have them.
- always take great care when placing or retrieving warning devices, but never use them on motorways;

- if possible, keep your sidelights on if it is dark or visibility is poor
- do not stand (or let anybody else stand) between your vehicle and oncoming traffic
- at night or in poor visibility do not stand where you will prevent other road users seeing your lights.

Today more than a million copies are sold each year in its printed version, carrying a recommended retail price of £2.50. But you can even save on that cost now as the Code's latest edition can be viewed freely online at www.gov.uk/highway-code.

we'll keep you on the road!

Tanners' play-off bid is dented

Leatherhead's Ryman Division One South play-off hopes were dented after a 2-2 draw with Tooting & Mitcham at Fetcham Grove on Tuesday night, writes Rob Ellis.

Tanners had goalkeeper Andrew Young to thank for some stunning saves that kept them in the match before a penalty from Mark Simmons and a header from Tom Bradbrook saw Richard Brady's men secure a point.

Tanners, in sixth, go to Walton & Her-sham on Saturday, before hosting Corinthian Casuals on Monday.

Epsom to stage Tour of Britain

Cycling fans will be descending on Epsom en masse when the Tour of Britain comes to town in September.

The tour's penultimate 96-mile stage will start in Epsom before passing through Leatherhead and then following a route to the finish in Guildford.

The line-up has not yet been announced, but previous riders include Olympic gold medallist and Tour de France winner Bradley Wiggins and former world champion and Tour de France stage winner Mark Cavendish.

However, the streets of Surrey are sure to be lined with cycling fans in a repeat of the scenes from London 2012 when Wiggins rode to gold.

The tour starts in Peebles, in the Scottish Borders, and ends, 736.6 miles later, in central London.

A Surrey County Council spokesman said: "There is a huge appetite for cycling in Surrey."

"Record numbers in the event's history turned out in Surrey last year, some 225,000."

Flowers to blossom in his new GT5 challenge

by TIM ASHTON

tim.ashton@london.newsquest.co.uk

Banstead motorhead Matt Flowers is preparing for the biggest season of his career so far, and he has no idea what to expect.

The 24-year-old won the Ginetta G20 Championship last term and has taken a step up to the G40 class this time round.

Known collectively as the GT5 Challenge, the Ginetta championship supports the British F3/GT meetings and is a feeder series for the British Touring Car Championship.

The season gets under way this weekend at Oulton Park, with Flowers – who is training to become a chartered accountant – in the dark about how he will fare.

The former Sutton Grammar School pupil said: "I don't know how well my car will compete in terms of pace, it is very difficult to tell until I

Making the step up: Having won the Ginetta G20 championship last year, above, Matt Flowers will make his bow in the G40 championships this weekend get out there for the first qualifying sessions.

"It would not surprise me if I finished first or last on Saturday. But looking at the season as a whole, I would hope to get some wins as the races go by."

The Ginetta G40 championship is a one-car competition featuring sealed Ford Zetec 1.8l engines, with Flowers, pictured, driving for Academy Motorsport.

Flowers won the G20 last year by virtue of nine wins. However, the hard work had started in 2011 when he started a run of consistent performances that resulted in 52 races without a retirement and 33 consecutive top six finishes.

He said: "It has taken three or four seasons to get to his point."

"I've been developing as a driver and getting on better with the car and it all came together last year."

"But this is now going to be my most competitive season yet, but I am really looking forward to the challenge."

Flowers has aspirations beyond the GT5 Challenge to the BTCC, but financial constraints are holding him back.

He said: "Racing is a hobby of mine, a serious hobby, and one I would like to take on full-time. But the trouble is money – you need a lot to get to the top. There's no limit to it really, you will always need more."

SPORTSbrief

SWIMMING: Epsom District Swimming Club completed the Surrey Championships individual races in fourth spot overall after collecting 11 medals, including three golds, in last weekend's meeting. Jamie Hegarty, 15, Robert Hegarty, 13, and Isabella Fakkell, nine, won gold, and Isabella also won bronze. Georgia Smith, 13, and Suzanne Norman, 15, won two silvers each, and Orlagh Smith, nine, also pitched in with a silver and a bronze. Nine-year-old Oliver Way added a bronze. Club chairman Toby Anstis said: "Our swimmers have produced some amazing performances this year." The relays start in two weeks.

PARKRUN: The Banstead Woods parkrun was won by Neil Reissland, of Collingwood AC, in 18 minutes, 22 seconds. The fastest woman was Hannah-Mai Flynn, of South London Harriers, in 21:09.

ATHLETICS: Tadworth AC's Mark Todd braved freezing conditions to finish 38th out of 560 runners in the Cranleigh 21-mile race, in two hours, 28 minutes, 26 seconds. Colin Woods was 273rd in 3:04:45 and Sarah Bell 385th in 3:16:05.

FOOTBALL: Leatherhead's postponed match against Crawley Down Gatwick in Ryman Division One South will now be played on April 11.
